In 2016, Jenessa Thompson was diagnosed with stage IV pancreatic cancer. She was 35 years old, a wife, and a mother of two young children. The diagnosis was a death sentence, and she was given just months to live.

But Jenessa refused to give up. She fought back against the cancer with everything she had. She underwent chemotherapy, radiation, and surgery. She tried experimental treatments. She did everything she could to stay alive.

In 2018, Jenessa's cancer went into remission. She was declared cancer-free. But she knew that the cancer could come back at any time.

In 2020, the cancer returned. Jenessa fought back again, but this time the cancer was too strong. She died in 2021, at the age of 40.

Jenessa's story is a powerful and moving memoir about one woman's journey with pancreatic cancer. It is a story of hope, survival, and grief. It is a story that will stay with you long after you finish reading it.
