Saffron is heartbroken. She doesn't know how she's going to get through the holiday without her grandmother. But she knows that she has to be there for her family. So she packs her bags and heads home.

When Saffron arrives home, she is greeted by her parents and her two younger sisters. They are all grieving the loss of their grandmother, but they are also trying to put on a brave face for Saffron.

Saffron spends the next few days helping her family prepare for Thanksgiving dinner. She cooks, she cleans, and she sets the table. But she can't help but feel a sense of emptiness. Her grandmother is gone, and nothing will ever be the same.

On Thanksgiving Day, the family gathers around the table for dinner. Saffron looks at her family and sees the love and sadness in their eyes. She knows that they are all struggling, but she also knows that they are there for each other.

As they eat their meal, Saffron begins to talk about her grandmother. She tells stories about her childhood, and she talks about how much her grandmother loved her. Her family listens intently, and they all share their own memories of their grandmother.

By the end of the meal, Saffron feels a sense of peace. She knows that her grandmother is gone, but she also knows that she will always be with her in her heart. And she knows that the love of her family will help her through this difficult time.

Thanksgiving With Saffron is a heartwarming novel about love, loss, and the power of family. It is a story that will stay with you long after you finish reading it.
